

Program Notes

This story begins with a Medieval monk sneaking away on meal break from the serious abbey he lives in . He uses this precious time to show off his hidden talents and dreams.

This show is performed in Grammelot, a universal gibberish language first developed by traveling clowns and minstrels during The Middle Ages. It consists of a few real words from various languages, and lots of nonsense sounds in between. Grammelot cut through the many language barriers that existed back in those days of isolated villages and hamlets. It serves Alex today, as he often works abroad.

Alex O'Brien Feldman has performed in his curly-toe boots throughout the U.S. , as well as at The Just for Laughs Comedy festival in Montreal , The Singapore Arts Festival, World Performance Festival in Japan, Showtime Comedy Special, and theatres from Northern Alaska to The South Island of New Zealand. His Public Service announcement urging parents to teach kids recycling can still be seen on late night television.

A VIDEO of Alexander in action is for sale after the show. Chuckle at his stage comedy and howl at his surprising off-stage antics, including the infamous dollar bill give away he does each April 1st.

Free video excerpts are available at www.alexthejester.com

Program Notes

This story begins with a Medieval monk sneaking away on meal break from the serious abbey he lives in . He uses this precious time to show off his hidden talents and dreams.

This show is performed in Grammelot, a universal gibberish language first developed by traveling clowns and minstrels during The Middle Ages. It consists of a few real words from various languages, and lots of nonsense sounds in between. Grammelot cut through the many language barriers that existed back in those days of isolated villages and hamlets. It serves Alex today, as he often works abroad.

Alex O'Brien Feldman has performed in his curly-toe boots throughout the U.S. , as well as at The Just for Laughs Comedy festival in Montreal , The Singapore Arts Festival, World Performance Festival in Japan, Showtime Comedy Special, and theatres from Northern Alaska to The South Island of New Zealand. His Public Service announcement urging parents to teach kids recycling can still be seen on late night television.

A VIDEO of Alexander in action is for sale after the show. Chuckle at his stage comedy and howl at his surprising off-stage antics, including the infamous dollar bill give away he does each April 1st.

Free video excerpts are available at www.alexthejester.com

